

When You Are Weary

Greetings in the name of the risen Christ!

It's May and the sun is shining (well, it is at the time I am writing this) and it seems as if Spring has finally arrived in West Michigan. May is full of celebrations, Mother's Day, Graduation, the end of school and Memorial Day. These celebrations bring joy for many, but might also be a source of sadness or stress for others, which leads me to highlight what else happens at this time of year. May is also Mental Health Awareness Month; the idea is that if we highlight mental health, mental illness, and the available resources, we, as a society, can reduce stigma and create incentives to improve the mental health system. It is an unfortunate reality that we don't talk much about mental health, or mental illness, in the Church; and the Church is exactly where we need to be creating a safe, sacred space for those conversations.

Mental health struggles can affect anyone, at any time, including people within our faith community. According to the National Alliance on Mental Illness (NAMI), approximately 1 in 5 adults in the U.S. experience mental illness each year, and the occurrences of mental illness among youth is on the rise. Since Covid, our society as a whole has become more divided, anxious, lonely, and depressed. Yet, the number of people seeking treatment is far less than the number of people experiencing mental illness. All too often seeking treatment is seen as being weak, or mental illness is seen in the church as being a result of limited faith; something you can pray away.

Let me be clear: mental illness is not a weakness. Struggling with your mental health is not a flaw, a choice, or something that you can "power through."

That last bit is important. Throughout my ministry, I have often encountered the idea that we need to be "put together" when we are at church. We need to smile and be nice, that church is not the place to bring our mess. We believe that if we let our mess through then we won't be good role models, or we will look weak.

Jesus said, "Come to me all who are weary and carrying heavy burdens" (Matthew 11:23-12:3) This invitation to bring our heavy burdens to God means that we don't always have to smile. Our faith community is intended as a safe and sacred space for all of us to be who we are, in whatever state we are, where we can be prayed for and supported in our struggles. God knows our struggles; God knows that sometimes it takes every ounce of strength and focus we have just to get up out of bed. God knows sometimes we just can't smile.

And God provides.

PASTOR'S PAGE CONTINUED

God provides community to support us in prayer, and to be present when we would hide away, and God provides people with knowledge and skills to help us manage our mental health. This May, and every day really, please remember that you are loved and valued. If you or someone that you know is struggling with mental health, please don't hesitate to contact Pastor Jess or seek help at a mental health facility.

May God guide you in peace and surround you with their holy, healing presence.

Amen.

Yours in Christ,

Pastor Jess

BOOK GROUP NEWS

May Selection:

The Only Woman in the Room by Marie Benedict

The Only Woman in the Room by Marie Benedict, an author many of us have read and enjoy. Who was this woman? And what do we know about her? She was a scientist. She was very beautiful. She lived in a castle and was married to an Austrian arms dealer. At her husband's side she learned of the Third Reich's plans. She had an idea to help fight the Nazis. Who was she?

The May Book Group will meet Wednesday, May 28 at 4:30. (This is a change from our normal date.) We do not have a book bag for this book. It is available in various formats at the library or locate your own copy. If you have questions see Vicki Russell.

NOISY OFFERING

May/June Noisy Offering: Paws for a Cause

For 45 years, Paws With A Cause (PAWS) has assisted thousands of people living with disabilities in embracing the journey of life through our amazing Assistance Dogs. Each custom trained PAWS Dog opens a world of possibilities – inspiring independence, confidence, companionship, and dignity for individuals, families, and communities.

The facility improvements needed to support the expansion of our mission and reach more of these qualified applicants will cost $9.5 million to complete. We're excited to share that PAWS has raised $9.1 million in charitable gifts towards our $9.5 million capital campaign goal already. Now we need the help of our community to raise the remaining funds needed!

More than 400 qualified individuals apply for their own PAWS Assistance Dog each year, far beyond our current capacity to serve. We are determined to answer the growing need for more custom-trained Assistance Dogs through strategic improvements that will maximize efficiency and support expanded programs in the world-class breeding, care, and training of our dogs. This will allow us to serve more qualified applicants and support them on their PAWS journeys.
